MARRIAGE CLUBS
Bachelors Will Co-operate With Benedicts to Solve Cost of Living Problems.

"How to get married even though the price of household necessities is soaring" is one of the problems which will be taken up in a practical way by an economy club to be organized in connection with the educational department of the Young Men's Christian Association of this city.

How to save more, rather than how to make more, will be the subject of a series of lectures, which will be given by the club. Similar organizations have been very successful in Ohio associations and one known as the "Benedict's Club" has recently been formed at Harlem Branch Association in New York city.

The membership of the club will not be confined to "would be" husbands, but there will be a sprinkling of those who are up against the problem of making both ends meet each day. These will tell the younger members the result of their experience in house renting, and purchasing clothing and groceries.

PLAY SPACE PLAN INDORSED BY CLERGY

The Washington Times' Suggestion Commended by Rev. J. H. Nelms.

"I think every public-spirited citizen in Washington should support the Washington Times in its efforts to have play space provided for school children by closing streets in front of schools during the noon hour."

This was the statement made today by the Rev. J. Henning Nelms, pastor of the Church of the Ascension.

The Times' suggestion to close a block in front of each school to traffic during the noon play hour was commended warmly by the Rev. Mr. Nelms.

"The children play on the streets anyway," he said. "The project outlined by the Times would eliminate danger to them and give them a feeling of greater freedom."

"I have given no special study to the legal aspect of such action, but it seems to me that if provision may be made to stop traffic in front of a house where there is sickness the authorities would have an equal right to order traffic suspended in front of the schools for a certain period each day."

"Whether that power is vested in the Commissioners may be a question, but it is certainly an inherent right of our highest governing body, Congress."

At a meeting of the club, held Friday, a program was rendered by Mr. Wrightson, president of the college, and head of the vocal department, and Mr. Fabian, dean and head of the piano department. Mr. Wrightson sang "A Longing," "It is Not Because Your Heart is Mine," and "A Love Remembered." The last number was heartily cheered.

FAMOUS PRELATE ATTAINS AGE OF 75

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 29.—Monsignor T. J. Capel, the Monsignor Catesby of Ireland's famous novel, "Lotar," for fifty years prominent among Catholic clergy, today celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary.

Ordained in London in 1860, Mr. Capel, a year later established the English Catholic mission at Pau. At the express wish of the Pope he delivered a series of sermons in English at Rome. In 1888 he was made private chamberlain to Pope Leo XIII and in 1893 domestic prelate. Distract was attracted to him by the large number of conversions to Catholicism he made among the English nobility.

Monsignor Capel was induced by ill health to come to Sacramento county twenty years ago.

POET OF SIERRAS DENIES HE'S DEAD

Joaquin Miller Comes Down
From California Hills to Refute Autobiographers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—Joaquin Miller did not die in 1902. He says himself that he did not. And the hale appearance of the venerable poet of the Sierras, as he came down from his home in the hills near Fruitville today, is proof of his statement, notwithstanding that a published de luxe edition of his drama "The Danites" fixes the date of his demise in 1902.

When the poet found he had been declared dead by his autobiographers, he said he could do no better than use the words of Mark Twain and brand the report as grossly exaggerated.

When Mr. Miller arrived in San Francisco, he had with him the beautifully bound, offending volume. English scholars who gave their names as Dr. Alfred Bates, of Trinity College, Cambridge; Prof. James P. Boyd, A. M., L. B., Lafayette College, and Prof. John P. Lamberton, of the University of Pennsylvania, included Mr. Miller among the immortal playwrights because of his Mormon drama.
